From the Editor's Desk

uring the month of March, 2015, there was a significant number of court verdicts on rights related issues, which gained limelight in public debates. One of them was on the decision of the Supreme Court scrapping Section 66A of the Information and Technology Act, which it did not find in tune with the Right to Freedom of Expression enshrined in the Constitution of India. The Constitution has guaranteed Fundamental Rights, which are to be exercised, understandably, with a sense of restraint. This is the only way that we can ensure that while exercising our rights we may not tend to violate the rights of others' or compromise with the sovereignty, integrity and security of the nation.

The other verdict, which rocked the human conscience, pertained to the acquittal of all the 16 personnel of the Provincial Armed Constabulary, PAC accused in the 1987 Hashimpura massacre case of Uttar Pradesh. As per the court order, it was an established fact that the PAC personnel were involved in the incident. There were witnesses to it but not enough material to nail the actual perpetrators to punish. Be that as it may, the outcome of the prolonged legal battle has obviously raised many questions - will the killers go scot free; what about the justice to the bereaved families; will they get any monetary relief from the State? One suspects that the coming months may unfold answers to many such questions.

Still, there was yet another important judgment, wherein the Supreme Court directed the Centre and States to ensure that no person was denied any service or benefit for not having an 'Aadhar Card' and that it should not be insisted upon in the light of its order dated the 30th September, 2013. Obviously, any action of the Government authorities, not inconformity with these directions, may amount to rights' violation, open to question by the NHRC.

Close to the issue of Right to Freedom of Expression was the debate around the ban on a documentary trying to portray the mindsets of sexual offenders. Should the Government ban it or not, or how effective could it be when the film was available on social networking sites across the world? Can an exposé about the macabre psychology of a sexual offender, at the time of committing the crime, help in checking the crime? Or, will it not lead to giving vent to the pent-up feelings of other such sick minds? Nothing can be said for sure. But in this situation, perhaps, a question can definetly be asked about the significance of such creative pursuits, even if these are meant for Freedom of Expression.

Sexual assaults are manifestations of sick minds. Brutalities exercised in the name of ragging are another manifestation of sick minds. The NHRC held a National level discussion on the issue which has been pegged in this edition among other interventions.

- It would be desirable that the Central Government made a law on ragging applicable to all States.

Important Intervention

Suspected witchcraft practioner's life saved

The National Human Rights Commission, acting swiftly on a complaint, got rescued one Vishnu

Dev Ravidas, a Dalit, from the clutches of some persons who had allegedly killed his wife suspecting that she practiced witchcraft. It lauded the efforts of its officers and local police in the matter.

It was found that a criminal case vide FIR No. 43/2015 was registered in the matter on the 20th March, 2015 at Police Station Pakri Barwan, u/s 143, 147, 149, 323, 341, 342, 365, IPC and Section 3,4 of Prevention of Witchcraft Practices Act. However, there was no information about the arrest of any accused in the matter nor any reasons provided for not invoking the provisions of the SC/ST Act. The whereabouts of the mother of the petitioner alleged to have been killed were also being ascertained.

The Commission observed that the allegations, if true, were disturbing that in a civilized society, governed by the rule of law, the evil practices like witchcraft were still in practice. It issued notices to the District Magistrate and Senior Superintendent of Police, Navada, Bihar calling for a report related to the incident, including the action taken against the accused. It said, if they failed to arrest the accused, they will have to appear before the Commission.

₹ 60 lakh as relief in a case of deaths of 40 persons

The National Human Rights Commission has not accepted the contention of the Odisha Government that it will not pay any compensation to the families of 40 persons, who died during February, 2012, after consuming contaminated alcoholic medicinal preparations. The incident happened in parts of Cuttack and Khurda districts.

Reiterating its earlier stand for payment of relief of ₹1.5 lakh to the next of kin of each deceased, the NHRC has asked the State Government, through its Chief Secretary, to send a compliance report along with the proof of payment.

The Commission had observed that the negligence of officers caused the unfortunate death of human beings, and the State was vicariously liable for their acts. The Justice Naidu Commission, set up by the State to conduct a judicial enquiry in the matter had also recommended monetary relief and held that the negligence of the officers had led to this tragedy.

₹13 lakh as relief to victims of sexual exploitation in a school

Persistence of the National Human Rights Commission ensured that 13 students, victims of sexual exploitation by a teacher at the Jawahar Navodaya Vidyalaya, Nayagarh, Odisha, were paid rupees ₹1 lakh each as relief for violation of their right to life and dignity. The school functions under the aegis of Jawahar

₹ 5 lakh as relief in a case of fake encounter

The National Human Rights Commission, setting aside the contention of the Government of Gujarat in a matter of encounter, reiterated that it had to pay ₹ 5 lakh as monetary relief to the next of kin of the victim Rahim Kasam Sumra, which the State government eventually paid. The Commission had taken up the matter on a complaint from the brother of the victim that Rahim was killed by the Gandhinagar police in a fake encounter on the 8th January, 2007.

In a prolonged exchange of notices and their replies, the Commission, on the basis of material on record, had found that the theory of a genuine encounter by police did not hold the ground. It recommended ₹5 lakh as monetary relief to the victim's family. The State government contested it as unjustified on the basis of yet another report, which was also rejected on merit by the Commission.

The Commission held that these responses were either inadequate, as explanations, or simply a confirmation that there were lapses and lacunae in the investigation of the case. The fact remained that the police was unable to establish that there was a genuine encounter.

Navodaya Samiti, Union Ministry of Human Resource Development. The issue was widely covered by media on the 23rd September, 2012.

The Commission found that only 13 students, instead of 38 students, as alleged, were sexually exploited. The accused teacher was arrested and terminated from the service. Four other teachers, who supported the accused and pressurized the complainant to withdraw his complaint, were suspended. Criminal proceedings were going on against them in a court of law. The then Principal of the school, who failed to keep a vigil on the immoral activities of the teacher for a long time and tried to suppress the incident, was transferred to another place. Criminal proceedings against him were also going on.

The Commission remained firm in not accepting the contention of the concerned authorities that monetary relief should not be awarded to the victims since they had expressed satisfaction with the action against the accused teacher and others.

Recommendations for relief
